TO THE OLD AND YOUNG.

PHENOMENON IN CHEMISTRY

First India Hair Dye.

Colors the Hair and will not the Skin!!!

I'HIS Dye is in form of a Powder which in plain matter of fact may be applied to the Hair every night, the first night turning the lightest red or grey hair to a dark brown and by repeating a second or third night. Providence Vorcester, Springfield, Hartford and or third night, to a bright jet black. Any person may therefore with the least possible trouble, keep his hair any dark shade or a perfect black, with a positive assurance that the powder if applied to the skin will not color it. There is no trouble in removing it from the hair, as in all powders before made By an occasional application a person turning grey-will never be known to have a grey hair! Direc-tions complete with the article. There is no coloring in this statement, as one can easily test I These facts are warranted by the gentleman who phu and many other works well known and widely celebrated by the public · Affilies are getting into a strange pucker in this stafe and it seems likely that the question will soon be settled whether revolutions can-be permitted in the states under the constitution of the United States. The revolutionary party on Tuesday last marched fifty or sixty men, from Mr Dorr's head quarters to the town house with an order for the artiflery field pieces and the order being declined the pieces were taken and carried under guard to the head quarters of Mr. Dorr and with several other pieces disposed around the house.

Governor King has issued an order, request receive arms, and the Journal calls upon the people to defend their institutions.

Expresses have been sent by both parties to all parts of the State giving information of the state of affairs. One company arrived in Providence on Tuesday evening from Pawtucket to aid the Revolutionists. On Wednesday morning Mr. Dorr at the head of his whole force marched to the arsenal and demanded poocession in the name of Col. Wheeler. The keeper declined the authority and the demand, and told them he should defend the Arsenal. The parley closed, and the Journal says that Mr. Doir ordered his men to fire, but they refused. They departed without making any assault. It was supposed they would in the course of the day make an attack upon the arsenal or armories.

A general order has been issued by Governor King to the several efficient chartered military companies in the State to report themselves at head quarters aqued and equipped for service.

Resignations still continue among the members of the Constitutional Assembly,

At about noon on Wednesday there was a great excitement as the alarm was given that the Sheriff was about to arrest Mr. Dorr. A large number of men assembled and were addressed by Mr. Anthony. A voice in the crowd demanded to be led on to the attack of the arsenal, and several respondent to it; but the orator cautioned them against committing an "over act." Mr. Dorr ordered the military to meet them in the afternoon "prepared for action."

It is said that Mr. Dorr offered one of the marshals of his procession any place in the gift of the State, if he would lead the attack on the arsenal but he declined."

A message was then sent to the Senate informing that body that a quorum of the House was assembled and ready to proceed to the busi-

A joint Committee of both branches was then sent to the Governor, informing him that in obedience to his Proclamation, the Legislature, had assembled and were ready to receive uny comnumication he might be pleased to make.

The credentials of several members elected to fill vacancies were presented and referred to the appropriate Committee. The Governor thinks the British Government are acting in good faith in taking this late step to effect a settlement of this " vexed question," and expresses a hope that it now may be honorably and peacefully settled. On the whole, the message, judging from hearing it once read, saving one or two expressions bearing rather hard on the previous conduct of the British Government which are similar in style to some expressions used in his gasconading letters to Sir John Harvey in 1839, is not without merit. # GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I herewith lay before you an official communication from the Hon. Daniel Webster, Secretary of State for the United States, under date of the seventeenth-of April last, relating to the Northeastern Boundary." By which, it will be perceived, that "Lord Ashburton, a Minister Plenipotentiary and special, from Great Britain has arrived at the seat of Government of the United States, charged with full powers from his think favorably of the appointment of Commission-Sovreign to negociate and settle the different eraby the Legislature, with such powers as a just matters in discussion between the two Govern- view of the case seem to require and not wishing ments." And, that in regard to the Boundary to avoid my share of responsibility, I cheerfully requestion, he has officially announced to the Government at Washington, that he has authority to treat for a conventional line, or line by of the New-York Commercial Advertiser, the with such mutual considerations and equivalents part, to commence such negotiation.

in an endeavor to terminate this long pending controversy.

The communication states further, "that, without the concurrence of the two States whose rights are more immediately concerned" the cours has bound har, vy the over the acety and the adopt no new course; but to hasten the pending similar to that now solicited. I appreliend, however, the peace toward Mr. STANLY for a year. The band recites the words of the statute with regard to intention, and restrains him from leaving the District of Columbia with an intent to fight a duel with Edward Stanly. So it would com fill that agreement unless another mode of setthe hope of producing a speedier decision.'

The President then proposes, it is stated, "that the Governments of Maine and Massachusetts should severally appoint a commissioner or commissioner empowered to confer with the authorities of the General Government upon a conventional line, or line by agreement, with its terms, conditions, considerations and equivalents, with an understanding that no such line will be agreed upon without the assent of such commissioners It is further stated, that in view of the fact, that the Brit " M: La "in a of voiel con, and Ma y y ad i to has be in the United States is not expected to be long" question now is, as being necessary, if, happily, a treaty should be concluded "the importance of the subject and a firm conviction in the mind of the Presinterest of both Countries, as and so the interests of the two States more immediate ately concerned, require a prempt offert to hand this despite to an end, constrain him to expect an earnest hope that the Executive of this State will convene the Legislature and submit the sub-

This step bee not been taken without due deliberation. The expense of an extra session the busy season of the year-the divided and distracted councils as well as other considerations bearing upautho paint, have not been overlooked. But weigthat I should not have been justified in refusing to give the people on opportunity, through their representatives to entertain and decide a question of so much importance as the one now presented. And whatever might have been my individual opinions as to the ultimate action that should be had, the duty of convening the Legislature would have been regarded as no less imperative; this duty being disinct from, and independent of that devol the up. n the Legislature when convened. The responsibility of further action now reets with you; by whoth, have no doubt, it will be met and discharged with that calmness, prudence and deliberation, required no less by your own high reputation, than fidelity to

The question presented for your consideration is and Green. Mr. Lamb was elected to fill the not a pairty question, but is, emphatically a State question one in which the whole people are interested, and on which their opinions and wishes should be ever appeared to me to constitute a common ground from which party policy and party strifes should be sedulously excluded, and on which no other con-Lamb and introduced an order, in substance to tention or rivalry should be witnessed than that which naturally springs from an ardent zeal in the That the question immediates. cause of the State ly before you is not free from embarrassment and ifficulties, is manifest, and it is equally clear that a calm dispassionate consideration only, can lead to satisfactory results.

When we regard the clearness of our title to the territory in controversy- the frivolous and sage from the Governor, which was read and unfounded pretensions of the British claim 1000 copies ordered to be printed. The message signedly effected the frequent invasions and is somewhat lengthy and not wanting in spirit, occupation of our territory the devastation of our forests the arrest and imprisonment of our citizens there is danger that an honest indigtion may lead us to overlook many important the Boundary with such limitation and testric- considerations necessary to a discreet and sound

It is due therefore to the subject that we view t in other lights. One alternative now contemplated, it seems, by the General Government, is a submission of the question to another arbitration. Against this, Maine has ever remonstrated, and, I believe, will continue to re-monstrate. We cannot perceive the difference, so far as authority is concerned, between doing e thing directly and indirectly. If the General Government has no power to cede directly any portion of the territory of the State, neither has t the power to accomplish the same thing through the forms of arbitration. But right of wrong in our position successful or otherwise as we may be hereafter in maintaining it we see, as a matter of fact, that the General Goveinment is determined to attempt the exercise cils" on this subject, and closes by intimating of such a power, and thus once more jeopard our that the people will expect the business of the icrritory, unless some other mode of adjustment be agreed upon. That this should be seriously considered in coming to a decision, is obvious Whatever may be the claim, however, of the General Government, as to its power through indirection, it does not claim the power of ceding, directly, any portion of our territory, or of directly agreeing to any other line of boundary than that described in the treaty of 1783. "Yielding to the correctness of our position in this respect, the General Government now asks this State for authority thus to settle the existing controversy, and invites her co-operation in effecting that

The British Government also, is now prepared to have been accustomed to receive from that quarter. If any thing less than this is intended, I am persua-I have understood that the Committee have ded that nothing will be accomplished in the way of an adjustment. If it is to be said, as has been said, that the treaty line is impracticable, and therefore, a new line must necessarily be agreed upon or that the case is so involved in doubt and difficulty that the only equitable way of resolving it is by "splitting the difference" and dividing the territory in some agreed proportions, such propositions if not regarded as absolutely insulting, would not, I am confident, be favorably listened to by a single citizen of the State. The treaty line we know to be a practicable one our claim to the whole territory embraced within that line we know to be just and after the course that has been pursued in regard to it, we have a conviction not to be shaken, that we could not honorably relinquish a part to obtain an undisputed right to the remainder. But if G. Britain is prepared to substantially yield the point of title, and offer us a fair equivalent, in other territory, privileges of navigation, N.c. for a portion of this territory as I am at present disposed to believe do not see why this vexed question may not thus be forever at rest. And it is difficult to perceive, how Maine, in thus consulting her interest, would compromit her honor. Entertaining these views, I am free to say, that I commend that course.

It may be that I have formed a too favorable opinion of the present disposition of the British Government agreement, on such terms and conditions, and ceptable proposition will be made to us what then? Would it necessarily follow that we had erred in appointing Commissioners and placing ourselves in an attitude to learn what the proposition would be? We shall, to be sure, have incurred the expense of an extra session of the Legislature; but we shall have shown to our sister States, and the world, that having Under these circumstances, the President of a just cause, we were disposed to adopt a liberal and the United States has invited the co-operation of fair course in conducting it and that, the strenuous the Governments of Maine and Massachusetts and ardent in the maintenance of our rights, we were not obstinately beat on a cristate thing to increase irritation, or bring about hostilities between the two Countries. Let what would be the result, Maine would stand, as she has heretofore stood blameless. But it may be objected that the government of the State has heretofore decided this question, and refusduty of this General Government will be to ed to invest the General Government with a power that, on recurrence to the proceedings referred to, it wait for propositions from the British Government, but were to volunteer them on our part.

Gov. KENT, in his special message to the Legislature, of March 14, 1838, says: "Th e Browe and important question therefore presented for your consideration, as you will more fully perceive by the documents referred to, is, whether you will clothe the Executive of the United States with the unlimited power of fixing a new and conventional line." again · "if a direct proposition had come to us, through the General Government, for a specific line of boundary, yielding to us territory or privileges of naviga-tion equivalent to the unsetfled territory which we might cede to them, it would certainly have presentthe Brit " Miss. Caxton had the merit of introducing the Roman pointing, as used in Italy; and his successor, Pinson, triumphed by domiciliating the Roman by letter. The dash, or perpendicular line, thus ] was the only punctuation they used. It was, however, discovered, that the craft of pointing well, used to make the sentence very light." The more elegant comma supplanted the long, ters, received by Felegraph, uncouth |; the colon was a refinement, "show-

But the semicolon was a Latin delicacy, which the obtuse English typographer resisted. So late as 1590, treaties on orthography do not recognize any such innovator. The Bible of 1592 though printed with appropriate accuracy, is without a semicolon; but in 1633, its rull rights Turner to the office of Steward of the Insane truly reflected. The subject of the boundary has are established, by Charles Butler's English of punctuation, it is evident that Shakspeare could never have used the semicolon, a cir-cumstance which the profound George Chalmers mourns over, opining that semicolons would often have saved the poet from his commentators,

[From the New York Herald, Jan 26, 1841] MYSTERIOUS. GENTLEMAN belonging to one of the most ancient and wealthy families of this city, who must be well known to numerous friends, having since the year 1818 up to recently, been bent nearly double, and for several years confined to his bed, has been restored to good health has regained his natural erect position and has quitted his carriage, and now walks with ease! We believe this is the gentlemen's own description as near as possible, and there is no exaggeration in it. We will give inquirers his address, and doubt not his humane feelings will excuse the liberty, so that any one doubling, may know these facts though he requests his name may not appear in print Among other similar in-alancas, Mr. James G. Reynolds, 111 Christic street, has been restored, and will give personal assurances of the facts of his case. Both were rheumatism, and contracted cords and sinews How has this been done?
